CRUET

Style Gothic Revival

Description Silver gilt and matted; the cruet has a baluster body and sparrow's beak spout, and stands on a stepped circular spreading foot. A border at the top of the body is engraved with a Gothic pattern of leaves, beneath which the body is fluted and divided into four panels by applied straps decorated with punched circles and a rope edge. The foot stands on a pierced gallery beneath an applied rope border. The slightly domed hinge cover is surmounted by a cross rising from a ring of trefoils. The handle is formed from a rope edged circle within a scroll, the area between being filled with a pierced grill of Gothic design.

Inscription On the base is an inscription

To the Honour of God
And in memory of Reginald Charles Coleridge
This Flagon was presented to Hartford Parish Church
By his friends
Many of whom were his comrades
In the Church Lad's Brigade
And the Boy Scouts
He went to his rest on the 15 April 1912
his body went down into the deep with the wreck of the SS Titanic and now sleeps in the hope until the Sea shall give up Her dead.
